

Black History in Covington, Kentucky, 1815-2025
Once Upon a Time in America
by Joseph M. Walton
(All Rights Reserved)

About the Author

JOSEPH M. WALTON and his family migrated to the city of Covington Kentucky, in 1944. Walton grew up on Covington's Eastside during the 1940s and 1950s and graduated from William Grant High School as class valedictorian in 1958. He then went on to earn a B.S. degree in Education from the University of Cincinnati, a Master of Education degree from Xavier University in Cincinnati, Ohio, and a Ph.D. degree in Education from The Ohio State University.

Joseph Walton was employed as a teacher in the Cincinnati Public Schools for five years. Following completion of the Ph.D. degree, he launched a thirty-year career in higher education at the University of Akron, Ohio, (UA) in 1970 as an assistant professor of Education (Counseling Department). Joseph Walton moved through the professorial ranks to become a full professor at UA in 1981. Concurrently, he held several administrative positions at the University of Akron, including acting dean of the graduate school, associate provost for Academic and Faculty Affairs, and executive assistant to the president of the University of Akron. He retired from UA as Professor Emeritus of Education in 2000.

Dr. Joseph M. Walton is the author of numerous academic publications, as well as a full-length book, The Life and Legacy of Lincoln-Grant School, Covington, Kentucky, 1866–1976, Little Miami Publishing, Milford, Ohio, 2010.